

Berkeley Program on Finance & Democracy

Rhodes Center at
Brown University

European Institute and Huth Initiative
for a New Political Economy, LSE

Finance & Democracy Summer School

at the London School of Economics and Political Science

JUNE
4-5
2026

Can finance be democratized? Why are states so scared of the bond market? Why are private equity firms seemingly everywhere? Finance is at the heart of the political economy of capitalism, but studying it can be difficult. The good news: some of the brightest minds in the field are eager to share their expertise. The goal of the program is to provide world-class training and build an intellectual community.

FORMAT

Two Full Days

Intensive instruction and discussion

Fully Funded

Travel and accommodation covered

INSTRUCTORS

Mark Blyth

Benjamin Braun

Daniela Gabor

Leah Downey

Ilias Alami

Marion Fourcade

Mathias Larsen

Brian Judge

Annina Kaltenbrunner

TOPICS

- Finance and democracy
- Finance and law
- Finance and wealth
- Finance and technology
- The bond market and the state
- State capitalism
- Finance and the Chinese State
- Money and democracy

Open to: Advanced PhD candidates (late dissertation), postdoctoral fellows, and early career scholars in political science, sociology, history, geography, and economics.

Required: Cover letter, writing sample, and CV.

APPLICATION DEADLINE

March 1, 2026

Questions? bjudge@berkeley.edu

APPLY NOW →